DIED FROM
AXE WOUND*Tetanus Caused Death of 3-Year-Old Donald Selgestad

Donald Omund Selgestad, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Selgestad, who reside west of Dixon, passed away at the Dixon hospital at 2:45 o'clock this morning, death resulting from tetanus which developed from a wound the little fellow inflicted on his foot a week ago Thursday. A coroner's jury, impaneled by Coroner F. M. Bunker, this morning returned a verdict of such report.

The little fellow was in the yard at their home with his mother a week ago last night, the mother chopping wood, when she was called into the house by the ringing of the telephone. As she got into the house she heard the baby crying, and rushing out discovered that he had picked up the axe and had nearly severed the fourth toe of his right foot. A physician was summoned and surgical aid was given, but tetanus developed, causing his death this morning.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Preston chapel, Rev. L. W. Walter officiating, and with burial in Oakwood.

The jury which held the inquest into the baby's death was composed of: Fred Richardson, S. A. Tippet, C. H. Nesbit, W. W. Woolley, A. C. Stein and J. A. Snyder.

COL. HOUSE HAD

visor Says U. S. Could Have Stopped War

Geneva, Aug. 21.—(A. P.)—Col. F. M. House, once personal adviser to President Woodrow Wilson, on making his first visit to the league of nations he helped to evolve, revealed that he took an option on 1000 acres along the shore of Lemana, six miles outside of Geneva, when the covenant was being drafted in Paris. The plan was to erect a league palace and a great "gateway of peace" in honor to the war dead, but the idea was abandoned when the U. S. did not enter the league.

Colonel House reports that the league was only half a league while the United States, Germany and Russia were outside.

"Had the United States maintained her word of enthusiasm and joined the league, war would have been banished for all time," declared Mr. House.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Three armed and masked men in a daylight raid yesterday entered the offices of Lazarus & Sons, manufacturing jewelers, forcing six customers, the president, to open five safes while customers and employees looked on, and escaped in an automobile with a fourth confederate with jewelry valued at $250,000.

The robbers slugged the elevator man as they entered the building. One of them operated it to the seventh floor where the office are located. They twisted Lazarus' arm and threatened to shoot him when he demurred at the command to open the safes. Two leisurely sorted out diamonds and valuable jewelry and discarded the rest while the third man guarded the prisoners. More than 20 employees in an adjoining room were not disturbed.

The trio descended on the elevator, leaped into the waiting automobile and vanished. Police could find no trace of the route taken.

Censorship Conceals
Report of Attempted Assassination

New York, Aug. 21.—(A. P.)—The censorship in Spain, imposed upon feature stories, local, foreign and national news and headlines, apparently is preventing establishment of the truth or falsity of a story related by a traveler arriving at Hendaye, France, from Santander, Spain, of an attempt to assassinate King Alfonso at Santander Sunday.

Recently there have been other reports of plots against the life of the Spanish monarch.

The story of the traveler was to the effect that a tall, well dressed man put his hand in his pocket as the royal automobile in which the king was approaching, near him. A suspicious movement in changing his dark eye-glasses to clear glasses was noticed by the police who took him into custody.

RADIO CAN HEAR SOUND WAVES OF
A HUMAN BRAIN*Marvelous Experiment
Described by French Investigator

Paris, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Sound waves from a human brain have been picked up by a radio receiver on a four to ten meter wave length.

The experiment is described by Prof. Cazzamali, head of the department of neurology and psychiatry at the University of Milan in an article prepared for the forthcoming issue of Revue de Metaphysique.

As a result Prof. Cazzamali foresees the transmission of sound waves from one brain to another.

He says he operated with high excited persons or those suffering from nervous disease as well as the noted Italian medium, Signora Maggi. The patient was shut up in an insulated cabinet. The sounds he heard through the receiver ranged from signals akin to ordinary wireless signals, to whistling to soft violin or cello notes.

Prof. Cazzamali says he is led to believe that the waves sent out from the brain of one person under certain conditions, might be picked up by the brain of another person under similar nervous, mental or hypnotic stress.

SIMPLE RITES FOR LAWSON
ON MONDAY*Great Publisher Will be Buried Beside Wife
in Graceland

Chicago, Aug. 21.—(AP)—No pretentious monument will mark the grave in Graceland Cemetery where on Monday morning will be buried Victor Fremont Lawson, owner and editor of the Chicago Daily News.

There will be only a marker, carved with the dates of his birth and death at the head of the grave.

The burial arrangements, simple as he desired them, will mark his devotion to his wife in life and to her memory after her death in 1914. Her body will be disinterred and placed beside his in one of the two lots he owned in the cemetery.

Funeral at Church

Characteristic of his dislike of ostentation is the fact that no ceremony will be held at his Lake Shore Drive mansion. The funeral service will be held at 11 o'clock Monday in the New England Congregational church of which he was a devoted member.

Co-workers Bearers

From among his co-workers on the Daily News have been drawn the men who will bear his body to the grave. They are: O. W. Butts, composing room foreman; Clark M. Cavanaugh, husband of Mr. Lawson's niece and News employee; Anthony Czarnecki, Cook County election commissioner; and former staff writer; William A. McKinney, business office employee; Henry J. Smith, former news editor and Donald J. Walsh, Mr. Lawson's secretary.

Life time associates of Mr. Lawson, in journalistic, benevolent and social activities were included in the 25 honorary pall bearers: E. J. Alden, A. B. Adair, C. H. Baker, Edward Price Bell, W. W. Baird, Herman Black, Benjamin Carpenter, C. H. Bennett, W. L. Fisher, Judge Jesse Holdom, T. D. Jones, James Keeley, James Langland, C. H. McCormick, Colonel R. R. McCormick, W. L. McLean, F. R. Noyes, A. S. Ochs, Harry Osterman, Jason Rogers, H. L. Rogers, Julius Rosenwald, J. C. Shaffer, M. E. Stone, W. A. Strong, W. H. Watson, J. E. Woodward and Eliason Thompson.

Roses On His Desk

Tributes and expressions of condolence from senders in all walks of life continued today to pour into the office of the Daily News where a sheaf of roses marked the vacant desk he had used for nearly 50 years.

Added to the messages from President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, McMillan, E. Stone, counselor of the Associated Press, Frank J. Noyes, president and Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press were expressions from those with whom he had worked untiringly for years. They told of the more intimate and human traits of the aggressive journalist, about whom traditions had grown in the public mind that he was lonely, cold and aloof.

Keen Sense of Humor

He had a sense of humor, they said, and rewarded a joke with robust laughter even when it cost money. Eugene Field, the poet-jester, frequently made use of his employer's humorous susceptibility. Field's humorous of approach for loans were always different. There would be a long murmur of argument, broken by a guffaw from Mr. Lawson which meant victory for Field.

They told of him that he never listened to bickering or petty scandals of office politicians. Once when a trusted employee who had been assaulted, sought opportunity to repeat the slander, the noted editor took him to luncheon. Listened to his statement, and at its conclusion beckoned the waiter to bring an especially choice of wine. When the glasses were filled, the publisher, his bowed and said "Your health, my friend."

His editors described him as a "cosmopolitan reader," his favorite books, the Bible and the dictionary. He had a penchant for searching out words, their derivatives and variations at meaning from age to age.

He wanted facts exact and words precise.

At Car Crossing

A family of tourists from West Virginia enroute to California in a Hudson sedan had a narrow escape from serious injury Wednesday afternoon at the Prairieville crossing of the Sterling and Dixon interurban line. This is the second accident to occur at this crossing during the past week, the other two victims still being confined in the Sterling public hospital recovering from their injuries.

The party Wednesday consisted of a man and his wife, a son and daughter. They were traveling at a moderate rate of speed owing to the pavement being slippery on account of the rain. They said they did not see the interurban until it was almost on them and they did not hear the whistle. They applied the brakes and slid a distance of 25 or 30 feet before colliding with the interurban.

The impact threw them into the ditch. The head end of the auto was smashed and the windshield was broken.

OIL EXPLODES*Tragic Accident East of Rock Falls Results in Girl's Death

An attempt to start a fire with kerosene in the kitchen stove at the home of her brother-in-law, Harry Hicks, just east of Rock Falls, resulted in the death of Miss Jennie Wilson, aged 14 years, at the Sterling public hospital about 11 o'clock Wednesday night. The explosion of the kerosene stove fire to her clothes and practically the entire surface of her body was burned. The accident occurred about 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Hicks, his daughter, Katherine, aged 10, and the Wilson girls were in the barn near the house where he was packing some tomatoes. The girls started to go into the house and he warned them not to start the fire as he would be in directly. It was but a few minutes later that he heard an explosion and looking toward the house, he saw flames through the kitchen window. He rushed toward the house just as the girl came running out of the house screaming, her clothes a mass of flames. He caught her and quickly extinguished the flames. He placed her in his car and drove at top speed for the home of a physician. The physician was sitting on his front porch at the time reading the paper and Mr. Hicks called to him from a distance and he got out to the street as they started to take her out. He told them to take her to his office which they did and he dressed her burns. She was then taken to the Sterling public hospital where she passed away about 11 o'clock.

The physician stated that he had never in his years of practice seen a person so badly burned. Aside from a small patch on her right shoulder and her feet, which were protected by her shoes, the entire surface of her body was burned. All of her clothing was burned off. The unfortunate victim of the explosion was alone in the kitchen at the time. Katherine Hicks being just outside of the kitchen door. The kitchen was scorched but did not catch fire.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, of 1425 Maplewood avenue, Chicago. About two months ago she and her mother came to Clinton, Iowa, where her mother was looking after some work being done on a home they own there. Last Monday she came to the Hicks home in Rock Falls for a visit. Mrs. Hicks, a sister of the deceased, went to Ponca City, Okla., about ten days ago for a short visit with Mr. Hicks's sister and to accompany home his mother, Mrs. Ed. Jones of Morrison. Mrs. Hicks was notified of the accident by phone and left for home immediately. The girl's mother was in Clinton and was notified and got there early Wednesday evening, before her daughter passed away.

NEW ARMY TO DRY UP U. S.
NAMED TODAY*List of Administrators Contains Mainly the Old Ones

Washington, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The new prohibition army will be captained in large measure by the same men who now command Uncle Sam's enforcement squadrons.

Out of 24 new district administrators named today by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, all but six already are in the service. Although he had announced a campaign to induce practical business executives to lend new blood to the organization, General Andrews said today that after investigation he had decided there were many now in the enforcement machine who should be given a chance to make good under the new plan that is to become operative September 1.

To Go After Wholesalers

Announcing his selections, the prohibition chief said his new force would make war on bootleg wholesalers and would make the question of local enforcement a secondary consideration. In addition to the 24 district administrators, he named Walton A. Green, former publisher of the Boston Journal as chief prohibition investigator. His functions will be to develop interdistrict and inter-district conspiracy cases and furnish each district with under cover men to work up these particular cases.

PERSONEL OF STAFF

Washington, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Prohibition's new staff of 24 federal administrators who will be given complete authority in as many districts over enforcement of the law September 1, was named today at the treasury.

The administrators and the cities in which they will have their respective headquarters follow:

District 1, R. B. Sams, acting administrator, Boston.

District 2, J. A. Foster, acting New York.

District 3, R. Q. Merrick, Buffalo.

District 4, Frederick Baird, Pittsburgh.

District 5, William G. Murdock, Philadelphia.

District 6, Edmund Budnitz, Baltimore.

District 7, B. E. Ewing, acting Chicago.

District 8, W. D. Moss, acting St. Louis.

ONE JOB ABOLISHED

The position of Chief of General Mobile Agent was abolished with appointment of E. C. Yellowley who has held that post, to head the 21st administrative district at San Francisco. In announcing the appointments, Assistant Secretary Andrews said the new prohibition forces would be concentrated upon the task of "eliminating the bootleg industry."

Their energies, he said, would be directed along three definite lines of attack—smuggling, illegal manufacture and illegal diversion.

District 15, A. C. Townsend, acting, St. Paul.

District 16, A. W. McCampbell, Omaha.

District 17, P. H. White, Fort Worth.

District 18, J. F. Vivian, Denver.

District 19, R. A. Fulwiler, Doanoke, Va.

District 20, B. C. Sharpe, Charlotte, N. C.

District 21, Halsey Dunwoody, Tampa.

District 22, O. L. Jackson, New Orleans.

District 23, Sam Collins, Louisville.

District 24, E. L. Porterfield, Columbus, O.

District 19, Elias Marsters, Helena.

District 20, R. C. Lyle, Seattle.

District 21, E. C. Yellowley, San Francisco.

District 22, R. E. Frith, Los Angeles.

District 23, E. C. F. Rabbe, acting, Honolulu.

District 24, A. J. Hanlon, San Juan, Porto Rico.

Rotarians Scoring Sinclair Lewis for
"Bumptious Boosters"

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Rotarians are striking back at Sinclair Lewis, who in "Main Street," "Babbalanza" and other works has indicated that a Rotary Club is a "bunch of big, bumptious small town boosters" and worse. "I'm going to take a fall out of Lewis," C. E. Keck, president of the New York Rotary club said yesterday over the radio. "He's just a bit off his trolley."

"Lewis is a writer who, having written two or three books that resemble some sort of a moving picture without a plot, thinks he knows everything in the world. Mr. Lewis, H. L. Mencksen and some other writers who don't take into account the actual facts, are so damned clever that they can settle any question off hand."

"If Lewis were a big enough man to tell the story straight, it would be all right. But he fixes up a little town of Zenith or whatever you call it and tells everybody that a Rotary club is a bunch of great big, bumptious small town boosters."

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Wheat Had Nervous Day on the Market

Chicago, Aug. 21.—(A. P.)—With Winnipeg showing fair strength, the wheat market on the Board of Trade today opened slightly under. Thursday's close, but rallied during the first hour to about 1/2 above the opening. Sept. seemed to show more strength than Dec. The opening was 1/4 to 1/2 cent down Sept. 1.59 1/2 and Dec. at same figures, 1.59 1/2. Considerable activity was shown in the May delivery which advanced almost 2c over opening figures.

There was a fair run of buying orders through houses with eastern connections and sentiment seemed somewhat less bearish. The range of wheat was over 2c and fluctuated rather rapidly from mid-session to the close. A huge range right at the finish, that carried wheat to the high point of the day. The final found wheat 1/4 to 1/2 up with Sept. 1.61 1/2 and Dec. 1.60 1/2.

Corn was listless and seemed to follow the movement of wheat. Trade was light during the first hour. After opening 3/4 down to 5c up Sept. 1.03 1/2 to 1.04, the market took a slight brace and then fluctuated within narrow limits.

Corn held within narrow limits with some selling of Sept. credited to a local professional. At the close, corn was 1/4 to 1/2 up, Sept. 1.04 1/2. Oats started a shade to 5c down, with Sept. 40 1/2 and held near the opening figures. Provisions were firm.

Epworth League Notes

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES
Last Sunday night "Stephan, the Workman of the Way" proved very interesting. Richard Becker gave the lesson in a splendid fashion. We are coming to the climax of these lessons so watch and listen.

We were all very sorry to say goodbye to Marilyn Johnston who left us Wednesday to make her home in Ohio. The farewell party given by the cabinet in appreciation of her splendid work in the fourth department leaguers was well attended by the leaguers. After the playing of games and partaking of ice cream and cake with reluctance we said goodbye and left many wishes for good luck and happiness with our honor guest. As we said before what our loss is someone's gain and we hope they will like Marilyn as well as we have.

Tuesday evening at the party those who attended the Institute presented Mrs. Powell with a fountain pen in appreciation of her excellent chaperonage.

There will be no League next Sunday night but instead we will join in the Union outdoor service to be held at Haymarket square, Rev. Case of the Presbyterian church will be the speaker. So as to be through by dark this service convenes at 6:30. Our usual League time. If it rains the service will be held in our church. Let's all attend.

NEWS FROM DIXON

CONTINUE LADIES DAY

The Board of Directors of the local Y. M. C. A. at a recent meeting discussed the ladies' day in the building. Over a year ago, Monday was given to girls and women of the city and it was given a trial for a year. It was found to meet a real need and the Board has decided to continue this department for another year.

During the summer months, the swimming pool has proved the big attraction, and many have joined in this privilege alone. The fact that the Y pool is an absolutely safe place in so far as weeds, undercurrents, or holes are concerned, has been a big drawing card. In addition to this, however, is the fact that the water is kept at the right temperature and it is chemically treated so that there is no chance for any impurities to live in it. Many have learned to swim in the pool during the season and many more are waiting until September first, when an experienced instructor will be available.

At the present time, girls' classes are from 2:30 to 3:30 Monday afternoon and from 6:45 to 7:30 in the evening. In addition to the local club, 2:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon and from 7:30 to 8:30 in the evening. The Y ladies membership includes not only swimming with instruction but also a full list of classes and gym classes during the winter season. We urge every lady, young or old, in Dixon to take advantage of the Y. M. C. A. privileges on Monday of each week.

EYESTRAIN HEADACHES

Many people suffer from headache, but are not aware that it is due to eyestrain, as there are no direct symptoms, only pain in the brow or back of head which they have attributed to strong light, biliousness, fatigue, over-indulgence at table, or mental worry.

Some call their headaches hereditary, saying that as their parents and grandparents had headaches, they must naturally expect to have headaches themselves. Little thinking that only the retentive errors or muscular imbalance of the eye were hereditary, and that they could expect relief from Properly Prescribed Glasses.

Optometrists are the legally recognized and regulated eyestrain specialists and the best qualified persons to inform you whether your headaches are due to eyestrain or other causes.

SOLITUDE—

By Grace Lydia Hull.
The grass on the bank of the mill race is dead.
And our feet sink through to the loam beneath.
The stream runs by like a shining sword.
Swift drawn from its velvet sheath.
The white stones gleam—the waters whirl.
Long weeds wave their slim, green fingers.
And a gray shadow lurks o'er a mossy bed.
Down in the depths, where the twilight lingers.

W. H. & F. M. S. Held Meeting Thursday

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Bethel Evangelical church held their August meeting at the home of Mrs. John Nelson with Mrs. Arlene Lord as assistant hostess.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, "Tell Me the Story of Jesus," followed by prayer by several members.

The Scripture lesson was in charge of Mrs. J. W. Rogers and Mrs. J. U. Weyant.

An interesting article, written by Mrs. MacLain for the church paper was read by Mrs. Hill.

Another hymn, "Rescue the Perishing," was sung after which Mrs. John Nelson presented the lesson topic, "One God to Glorify."

This proved to be a very interesting discussion of some of our modern day problems along missionary lines.

A leaflet, "Shut in, but not Shut Out," was read by Miss Mary Martin.

After the program the president, Mrs. C. E. Hill, took charge of the business of the society, several important matters being considered.

The meeting closed by all praying the Lord's prayer.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—
Berries, cereal, thin cream, poached eggs on graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—
Bacon and tomato toast, lettuce sandwiches, cottage cheese pie, milk, tea.

Dinner—
Creamed salt codfish, baked potatoes, buttered new beets, cabbage salad, vanilla sponge with chocolate sauce, rye bread, milk, coffee.

Although the younger members of the family cannot indulge in the cottage cheese pie the pie is so delicious and out of the ordinary that the recipe is included. For a family of adults and older children the dish is nourishing and with a salad and sandwich makes a meal.

Cottage Cheese Pie
Three eggs, 1/2 cup light brown sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup cottage cheese, 1/2 cup dried currants, 1 lemon (grated rind), 1 1/2 cups milk, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar, plain pastry.

Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored. Beat in sugar, salt, grated lemon rind and milk. Add cheese and currants and fold in the whites of 2 eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a pie plate lined with pastry and bake until firm in a moderate oven. Beat white of remaining egg until stiff and dry on a plate using a wire whisk. Beat in 2 tablespoons of powdered sugar and fold in remaining 2 tablespoons of milk on pie and bake eight minutes in a slow oven.

The oven should be hot when the pie is put in to bake the crust then the heat is reduced to bake the custard more slowly.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

"Don't you think what is known in etiquette books as the 'conventions' ought to be revised?" writes a girl who signs her letter "Steno."

"No one," she goes on, "observes them any more. What girl takes a chaperone around with her. Who sends her beaux home at 10:30? Who won't accept more than flowers, candy and books from a man—if she can get it? Who doesn't kiss before she is engaged? Who pays any attention to all the old stuff anyhow?"

Well, one would get the idea, to read the current magazines and the daily papers, that not very many young people did, at least not the ones enumerated by this girl.

Certainly there is more freedom all around, particularly among girls who take things into their own hands and don't stop to think about Mrs. Grundy.

But in the girls' schools, the colleges and finishing schools where girls are carefully trained, the older traditions still prevail. The jazz age hasn't upset all the established values.

The most artistic boarding school in New York, where the daughters of many of the foremost social families of the country are "finished," is just as strict now in its demands as it was before all this talk about freedom.

The girls have to wear petticoats. Petticoat inspection is a regular institution. The girls do not go shopping without a chaperone, they do not receive telephone calls from persons not on the accredited lists of their parents or guardians. There are only a limited number of plays they may attend.

They cannot receive candy even from home. They must be in bed by ten o'clock.

These girls are all daughters of first families being groomed to take high positions in society. Yet they are being reared just as conventionally and strictly as their mothers were.

This is a finishing school. The University of California, a co-educational school where the students are much older and a less conservative spirit prevails, has issued the following list of transgressions that will not be tolerated from girl students.

Coming home from dances after 1 o'clock.

Entertaining masculine friends after 10:30 p. m.

Hose rolled to the knees.

Generous use of rouge and lipstick.

All extremes in dress and conduct.

Petting parties.

Drinking intoxicants.

We can't get along without conventions, which are, after all, only the established and the safest ways of regulating our conduct. We can't throw them to the winds in one generation.

And at the colleges and schools and institutions where the most careful training is given to young girls, what "Steno" calls the old stuff is still very much observed.

Easy to Shop

In equipping our new store, it was our first consideration to make it easy for customers to shop. Waiting for change is a vexation to both the customer and the sales person.

The sense of uninterrupted personal attention which the customer gets through the instantaneous operation of National Cash Registers is a big service item.

Therefore, we have adopted the most modern National Cash Register System. There is no annoying wait, when you are through buying, the sale is recorded instantly and on the spot by the salesperson, and your change and parcel are ready for you.

It is pleasing to you, it is pleasing to the salespeople, and enables them to wait on more customers.

TAKE CHICAGO'S PROPOSAL?

The Bloomington Pantagraph gives expression to views of two leading members of farm organizations concerning the proposal that Chicago create a state for itself. They are inclined to the belief that the atmosphere would be cleared if downstate people joined in the request and gave the Chicago district an opportunity to vote on the question.

They believe that a majority of the people concerned in Chicago and such adjoining counties as the Cook county officials desire to take with them would be recorded against the proposal when the vote was cast. Then would come greater opportunity to reach some agreement concerning re-apportionment.

These conclusions are based upon suspicion that Chicago and people of its environs are not convinced that Chicago government by itself is better than government of Illinois as a whole.

Something must be done eventually, says the Pantagraph, conceding that the controversy between Chicago and downstate counties is one that should be ended. It may be that the means to the end would be to permit Chicago to determine for itself whether or not it wishes to secede from the state and to determine further whether or not it can carry with it the several counties adjacent to Cook, which officials here include in their plans.

When the proposal first was made the question was raised in this column concerning the highway bonded indebtedness of $150,000,000, which now is a lien against the property of Cook county as well as that downstate, and which is to be paid by revenues from licenses of Cook county automobiles in common with those of other counties.

This may be all clear to the advocates of the division of the state, but they have not yet let the public into their confidence concerning the procedure.

FORBEARANCE TOWARD OTHERS.

There is a whole sermon in Shakespeare's line (in Measure for Measure): "Condemn the Fault and Not the Actor of It."

Whatever folly men commit, be their shortcomings or vices what they may, forbearance is our duty, remembering that when these faults appear in others, they are our follies and vices that we behold.

They are the shortcomings of humanity, to which we belong; whose faults one and all, we share;

Even those very faults at which we usually wax so indignant, merely because they have not appeared in ourselves.

If you accustom yourself to this view of life you will regulate your expectations accordingly, and cease to look upon all its disagreeable incidents, great and small, its worries, its misery, as anything unusual or irregular;

And you will find that everything is as it should be, in a world where each one of us pays the penalty of existence in his own peculiar way.

Best of all this view of life will enable us to contemplate the so-called imperfections of the great majority of men, their moral and intellectual deficiencies and the resulting base type of countenance, without any surprise, to say nothing of indignation.

An optimist is one who never can find faults; a pessimist knows that faults are unavoidable.

What better creed could idealists have than "Pardon's the word for all!" as Shakespeare exclaims in Cymbeline?

After all, there is nothing in life more precious than tolerance, patience, regard and love of neighbor, of which everyone stands in need and which therefore, every man owes to his fellow.

NEW YORK MAYORALTY.

This being what is known as an off-year in politics, interest in the November elections will be divided between the election of a United States senator to succeed Robert M. LaFollette in Wisconsin and the choice of a mayor of New York.

Municipal elections in the metropolis have not attracted as much national attention recently as formerly, but affairs are being shaped for a lively campaign.

Mayor Hylan is seeking a third term. He is known as the candidate of William Randolph Hearst.

Tammany hall will be represented in the field by J. J. Walker, a state senator. It is reported that Gov. Al Smith proposes to take a hand in the game as a supporter of the Tammany candidate.

Republicans have joined with an element of democrats and have formulated a fusion ticket headed by Frank D. Waterman, manufacturer of fountain pens. Democrats are represented farther down on the ticket.

This situation has all of the elements of a contest worth watching, and the rest of the nation undoubtedly will hear much concerning it as the day of election approaches.

AUTOMOBILES.

The first half of 1925 has seen more automobiles made and sold in the United States than ever before, according to the latest figures.

As an indication of our general prosperity that isn't so bad. And as an indication of the growing amount of enjoyment and plain, every-day happiness that the average citizen is able to grasp, it is even better.

The Washington climate is about the worst in the United States, yet it is great disappointment to many to be kept away.

BY CHESTER H. ROWELL

Politics wins! General Anderson is not to have his non-political enforcement service, organized on business principles but must submit his appointments to the political approval of the senators of the states in which their districts operate.

And, of course, the high class executives whom he had sought to supervise prohibition enforcement would not accept appointment on these terms, even if they could get it, which is unlikely. In fact, many of them had already told him that they would not consider the service at all unless they would have the same opportunity to accomplish results that they would have in business—that is, control of their own subordinates and the authority to pay them the same compensation that business would pay for similar services.

These are precisely the two things which politics will not permit. So, if we get rid of the present corruption and inefficiency in the prohibition service, it will probably be only to see it renewed in other hands.

Political patronage-monging and loyal enforcement do not mix.

Should We Have Such Politics?

Why should there be this sort of "politics" in the prohibition or any other service? It does not improve the public service. Neither, generally, does it better the personal political fortunes of those who insist on it.

More politicians are destroyed by patronage than are made by it. We have got rid of it in the classified departments of the civil service, to everybody's benefit. But never with the willing consent of Congress. Pressure was always necessary, from the president and from the people.

Yet in those services, the spoils system produced nothing worse than extravagance, inefficiency, favoritism, injustice and minor graft. In the prohibition service it has meant all these, and corruption and contempt of government besides. The announced policies of General Anderson promised improvement. Senatorial interference will make—has probably already made—improvement impossible.

A Safe Remedy Would Be to Bite Off Less.

Let France take warning of Carthage! When the ancient Punic nation got so engrossed in business that it hired foreign mercenaries to fight its wars, that began the decline which ended in its complete destruction by the citizen armies of Rome.

Centuries later, Rome suffered an analogous fate. France, though for different reasons, seems to be risking the same rash experiment.

African troops in Europe, and now German mercenaries and American adventures in the Rift, are a dangerous beginning. The reason, to be sure, is that France is undertaking to conduct an imperialism greater than it has the men or the resources to maintain. In homelier Americanese, it has "bit off more than it can chew."

But false teeth are not the remedy even for that predicament. The only safe course is to bite off less.

No Remedy if Politics Interfere

Wholesale corruption is revealed in the narcotic as well as in the prohibition enforcement services. Probably no one will propose a free opium and cocaine law as the remedy. In fact, there is no remedy, except honesty and vigilance. And these are out of the question if job-peddling politics interferes.

The army and the navy demonstrate that these qualities can be had, in public service. But how long would the naval and military services retain their present high standards if they lost their independence. So long as there are outlawed business—smuggling, bootlegging, narcotic peddling—so long

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

MRS. KILLDEER'S EGGS

"A reward cried Mrs. Cuckoo.

Mrs. Cuckoo opened her eyes and there, propped up against a branch near her nest, was a birch bark note.

What were you saying, my dears? That Mrs. Cuckoo did not build a nest, but laid her eggs in other birds' nests!

No indeed! She doesn't do that in Dixie Land. Her bad cousins in Europe do that, but not she. She builds her own nest.

Well, there was the note that said, "Dear Mrs. Cuckoo, If you find a round shiny, white thing as you go around on your travels, will you please bring it to Will O' the Wisp's house in the pond a once, Reward!"

"A reward!" cried Mrs. Cuckoo. "I wonder what the reward will be. I hope it is a nice fresh beetle, or some wild rice or something like that. I'll go and look at once."

So off she flew.

By and by she came to a cotton field.

"I wonder if it's cotton that Will O' the Wisp wants," she said thoughtfully. "It's white, but it isn't very round and it isn't at all shiny. No, I don't suppose he would be offering a reward for a piece of cotton. It must be something else."

So she flew on further until she came to a moon vine with big white buds all over it.

"It might be a moon flower," she said, "but these twisted buds won't be flowers until this evening when the moon comes up. And by that time Will O' the Wisp can look for himself. No, it can't be a moon flower."

So she flew on further until she came to a Killdeer's nest on the ground.

Mrs. Killdeer was later nesting than some of the other birds, and there were four round, white eggs in the nest. True they were sort of speckled, but "maybe the letter forgot to say anything about specks," thought Mrs. Cuckoo.

"I'll take one anyway," she decided. So she opened her beak and very, very carefully took up one of the eggs and flew away to the pond where the Twins were waiting at Will O' the Wisp's house.

"I've brought something round and white and shiny," said Mrs. Cuckoo, as she laid the egg carefully on the doorstep. "Will you please give me the reward now."

"Oh goodness!" cried Nancy. "You've brought a bird's egg, Mrs. Cuckoo, and that's not right at all. You must take it back at once. Never touch a bird's egg but your own, Mrs. Cuckoo. Don't you know that?"

"I know it now," said Mrs. Cuckoo. "I'm sorry. I'll take it right back."

"No, I'll take it," said Nick. "Where is the nest, Mrs. Cuckoo?"

"In the blue grass between the tobacco field and the corn field," said Mrs. Cuckoo.

Nick took the egg back, and when Mrs. Killdeer came home she never knew what an adventure one of her egg-children had had, or how nearly she came to losing it.

There was still one of Puff's buttons to be found. But no one in Dixie Land knew a thing about it. (To Be Continued) will they corrupt the public watchmen if they can.

Incorruptible men can be had for these services if given the necessary responsibility to do the work. But not if the jobs are peddled around, as the reward of political service to interested individuals.

OFFER TO DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Twelve Innocent Men Agree to be Electrocuted Publicly to Abolish Electrocution as Means of Killing Criminals

BY LARRY BOARDMAN
NEA Service Writer
Washington, D. C.—Twelve old men of this city are seeking death by electrocution. They have asked permission to die in the electric chair as a protest against capital punishment. If the plans of the Prisoners' Relief Society here go through, their wishes will be fulfilled. The society is planning to stage a "capital punishment exhibition" at which the twelve will be victims. Most prominent of the volunteers is Dr. Walter C. Murphy, practicing physician in Washington for 55 years. "The state has the right to take a man's life," he said, "but it has no right to torture him before he dies. As a doctor, I know that the electric chair is the most horrible torture conceivable. Like a Dentist's Drill "Imagine a dentist's drill run into all the nerves of your teeth at once, then imagine that pain all through your body instead of only in your mouth, and you will have some idea of how it feels. "I feel that if the people could only see the terrible agonies of a man being electrocuted they would soon abolish the practice. "That is why I am willing—even anxious—to sacrifice myself as an example." The movement was started by G. P. McGraw, aged philanthropist who made known his desires to Dr. E. E. Dudding, Prisoners' Relief president. In explaining the reason for his strange request he told how he had been convicted of murder and sentenced to death in Ohio more than 30 years ago.

HARRY CRABTREE IN NEWS LETTER ON CALIFORNIA Oil Driller Finds Prehistoric Tree 1100 Ft. Under Ground

The Telegraph has received another interesting letter from H. H. Crabtree, of Los Angeles, formerly of Dixon, which reads:

"The Home of Hospitality."

Completion of the super-structure of the $2,500,000 Temple of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 99, 22, P. O. Elks, occurred here just recently, promptly on the time scheduled nearly a year ago by the Schofield Engineering-Construction Company, who were awarded the contract for the building. No formal ceremony was held in connection with the pouring of the last batch of concrete, although the officers of the Elks' Building Association were present to congratulate the builders of the great structure which towers to limit height opposite Westlake Park.

The immensity of the concrete work, generally regarded by engineers as the sturdiest type known, is realized when it is stated that six million, two hundred and seventy-five thousand, five hundred pounds have been poured in the Elks' building, and engineers have declared this new building as the most complicated reinforced structure on the Pacific coast.

"He Went About Doing Good"

The impressive service of inscription of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was celebrated the other day at the new Temple being built by Los Angeles Lodge No. 99, when the board appointed to decide on the legends to be carved over the arches gave its directions to the builders.

For the tablet above the fifty-foot arch over the main entrance on Park View street, the scriptural wording of the Golden Rule was unanimously chosen. The wording to be placed over the entrance to the memorial hall, the lodge hall and the entrance for the wives and children of lodge members, was not made public.

The committee met in memorial hall and, while the 350 men working on the building gathered in the cathedral-like main hall, the three judges descended the grand stairway and, at its foot handed the legends to the masons.

In his invocation, Chaplain H. E. Kincaid gave thanks for the harmony that had prevailed in the building, declaring that although the great structure was more than sixty per cent completed, there had not been a single or major injury of a workman, no sign of dissension or labor trouble and no item of material delayed an hour in delivery, a record unique, he said, in buildings of such magnitude.

World's Largest Oil Basin. Construction on the largest oil reservoir in the world, with a storage capacity in excess of three million barrels, was started the other day at the Watson Station by the Pan-American Petroleum Company, (Doheney's) approximately six hundred workmen being employed on this huge project.

Construction of this reservoir has been occasioned by a combination of circumstances, the steadily increasing production of the Pan-American fields in Central California, and the fuel contract which the Navy Department holds with the Navy Department.

With the completion of the basin,

"I appealed the case, won a new trial, and was finally acquitted," he said. "But the shadow of my trial still hung over me in the town where I lived. I was completely ostracized. When I went to church the people would get up and leave the pew where I sat. "Finally I changed my name and moved away. Then my wife died and my son was killed in the World War. "Now I am old. I have nothing left to live for. But I would like to do some act that would help mankind. "The other ten would-be victims, all over 80, have requested that their names be withheld until plans for their execution have been completed. All Willing to Die "These men all mean what they say," Dudding declared. "They are willing and anxious to die for the cause. "As to our capital punishment exhibition, which we plan to hold the second week in December I am now negotiating with the Washington Auditorium Corporation, Calvary Baptist church and First Congregational church for a place to stage it. "We plan to have twelve electric chairs on the platform, with a volunteer victim in each. They will be electrocuted one by one. "I have written to the attorney general asking for a ruling on whether such an exhibition may be held. "But if he rules against it, we will go right ahead with our plans. I believe that these men, all fully matured and in their right minds, have the right to take this action if they wish."

Los Angeles Harbor's strategic value as a naval operating base will be greatly enhanced. The Pan-American storage area at Watson already has reservoirs and tanks with a capacity of nearly seven million barrels, and the addition of this new reservoir the Doheney concern alone will have fuel immediately available to supply the entire United States Navy under actual war conditions. This amount is doubled by the storage reservoirs and tanks of other oil companies in the Watson, San Pedro and Wilmington areas. Navy Department and Pan-American officials state that the construction of the new storage basis will have no bearing on the Doheney contract for supplying the Navy's fuel reserves at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Oil Bit Drills Prehistoric Tree at 1100 Ft. Rotating at a depth of 1100 feet, a Standard Oil Company drill, in a wild cat well at Greenville, east of Huntington Beach, passed through a prehistoric cedar tree, cutting through eighteen feet of well reserved wood. The incident was revealed by the log of the well, indicating, foot by foot, the nature of the earth's formation through which the drill passes. The average log tells of brown shale, streaks of sand, clay, fossil shells, etc., as the drill progresses.

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

FRIDAY, AUG. 21 If so, you are lucky. Success will come to you. Both in love and in business. You are very shrewd. But do not appear to be. You have an excellent mind. You read "high-brow" books. And have a taste for science and art. You would fit into many callings. And have diversified talents. You are inclined to be selfish. And to consider yourself first. But you are not grasping. You are never a "wall flower." Or one who hangs back. You are very entertaining. And have many friends. And jealous enemies too.

TOO EXACT

A man, exact in the matter of his English, consulted a doctor for an ailment.

"What you need more than anything else is a tonic in the shape of fresh air," said the doctor. "Before we proceed further," said the patient, "would you mind telling me what is the shape of fresh air?"—Tit-Bits.

THE TANGLE

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO PAULA PERRIER:

My dear Paula:
I arrived home from Leslie Prescott's party which Melville Sartoris gave her on his yacht, to find your letter. His entertainment came very near becoming a great tragedy. I am sending you the clippings about it.

I wonder if you ever knew Melville Sartoris? He is sailing through the Panama Canal to Los Angeles, and then on to the Orient. You ought to know him. He's a writer in a dilettante way, and just has a oodles of money. They say he's a regular Prince Charming, and if he does everything on the same scale in which he planned and executed this farewell luncheon for Leslie, he certainly earns the sobriquet.

I told him if he stopped at all in Los Angeles, to hunt you up and say he was a friend of mine; in the meantime I would write you.

He really isn't a friend of mine, Paula, but I'm quite sure he would amuse you for a little while. Personally I would like to know what you think of him. I think you have an uncanny judgment in regard to people.

You will forgive me when I tell you that I smiled over your latest baby problem. You and your baby problems, dear child, have always been most interesting to me. Talking about them, I want to tell you about little Jack. He is the handsomest, sturdiest little chap you ever saw in your life—and the way he idolizes Leslie! Honestly, Paula, although I am not telling her, I will say to you privately I really think she is fonder of him than she is of her own baby.

Life is queer, isn't it? Here you are, having had to give away your own baby, because you did not have money enough to keep it and you would not accept money enough from me to tide you over. And then destiny in the shape of motion pictures flings into your lap a lot of money so that you could have taken care of him if you could have managed to live on a little longer with him. In the meantime in a fit of of hurt pride and utter dejection you have given him to the wife of his father.

Now after a time, when the hurt of your own baby's loss has become perhaps a little softened, a woman who thinks her husband is in love with you, dies, and makes you promise to care for her baby. Fate has a way of mixing up things in a manner that mortals could not conceive.

I can see just the position in which you are placed, and I think that Beatrice Summers gave you that baby purposely to make a living bond between you and her husband. I don't see anything else for you to do, however, but to take it, although, as you say, it will probably shake Holywood to its center.

Why don't you care for Summers? Everybody tells me he's a nice sort of a chap. You must have a great many tastes and interests in common.

WASHINGTON BACK ON TOP; PIRATES INVADE NEW YORK

Great Finishes Coming in Both of Major Organizations

New York, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's hopes for exclusive rights to the world series were dimmed today. The Philadelphia Athletics were back in second place in the American League and Pittsburgh, leading the National League, had a desperate and formidable opponent to contend with in the first two games of a five game struggle at the Polo Grounds.

A twelve inning mound duel won by Washington, 1-0, carried the world's champions into the American League leadership by a full game yesterday as the Mackmen suffered their third straight defeat from the Browns, 7-6.

The Senators hit Miller freely, but were extended three extra frames by Cleveland before they could insert a finishing blow. Zachary quit after the eighth for a pinch hitter and Marberry hurled.

Pirates Meet Giants.
In spite of the fact that they lost a hard fought game to the Cubs, 5-3, while the Pirates were regaining their three game advantage as the result of a fluke home run by Cuyler 2-1, the New York Giants today were loaded with trouble for the National League leaders. Lucky hops decided both games in which the leading National League contenders figured. In the case of the Giants, an ineffective looking roller from the lat of Heathcote and a fly by John which fell for a double aided in the downfall of the champions, while Cuyler's homer against Brooklyn was a mere single which took an unexpected hop over Brown's head in the outfield and rolled to the fence.

Cincinnati bombarded the Phillies with 15 hits to win three games out of four. The score was 8-4. The Braves, after long confinement in the cellar, climbed to within a few points of seventh place by inflicting a fourth straight defeat, 6-3, on the Cardinals as a result of unbeatable pitching by Barnes.

The Red Sox dropped the fourth straight to the White Sox. Blankenship was boosted to his eighth consecutive mound triumph by loud speaking Chicago bats.

BIG CHICAGO SERIES

Chicago, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The crucial National League series opening in New York today has a parallel in Chicago today between the second and third place teams, Philadelphia and Chicago, fighting to wrest leadership from the world's champion Senators.

A week ago the Chicago White Sox were eleven games behind the Philadelphia and Washington teams, but the slump of the Athletics at St. Louis and five Chicago victories in the last six games have brought the Sox within eight games and raised the hopes of White Sox fans to high pitch.

Washington is on top by but one game, for the third time since July 4, but Cleveland fought them for 12 innings yesterday, before admitting defeat.

Kathleen McKane, British Tennis Star, Looms Strong

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Its complexion changed by the elimination of Miss Ryan, Californian, who had been regarded as the foremost title contender, the battle for the National Women's Tennis championship, reached the semi-finals today with one British, threatening in each event.

The foreign menace in singles looms unexpectedly as a dangerous factor in Miss Kathleen McKane, who yesterday beat Miss Ryan.

Miss McKane was favored to take the measure today of Mrs. Molla Malory. If she does, it will bring the British girl into the finals where, barring the most sensational kind of

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bib Falk of the White Sox pulled a game against the Boston Red Sox. With two out and the tying run on third in the fifth, Frotho hit a liner to left field. Falk turned his back to the ball and galloped to the screen. Just before he landed against it, he poked up his hit and speared the ball. The play was probably the turning point of the game.

Charles Ruffing, one of the best pitchers on the Red Sox staff was unable to stop the White Sox who were determined to make a clean sweep of the series and give Ted Blankenship his eighth consecutive victory. Ruffing's team mates played erratic ball behind him and Zahniser who took up the burden in the fifth frame.

Young Hodapp who just joined the Indians from the Indianapolis American Association club, paved the way for the world's champions victory which put them in first place. Hodapp cut loose with a two base wild throw in the 12th inning when he pegged Marberry's grounder wild to first. The next man singled and when the next fellow hit to Hodapp, he partly made up his error by throwing Marberry out at the plate. The next batter fooled out, but when Goshin cut in with a hit the winning marker came home.

Fred Marberry stepped into the gap for the third day in a row as a relief pitcher for the Senators and started his club to a victory over the Indians when he got two bases on an error by Hodapp.

Rogers Hornsby, champion hitter of the National League suffered a severe setback in his batting while facing the brand of ball as dished out by the Braves twirlers. In the four games at Boston, the Cardinal manager was able to connect for only one safety.

Toney Kauffman of the Cubs proved to be the new Giant killer when he left the league champions down with three hits for eight innings and staved off a desperate ninth inning rally when two more hits were cleaned off him.

Jack Bentley went the entire route for the Giants against the Cubs and drove in all three runs which his club registered against Chicago for the short end of a 5-3 score.

Clarke Pittenger, who has been inserted at the hot corner by Manager Maranville, has a great batting eye. He smashed out four hits against Bentley and also demonstrated that he can step along the paths. He swiped two bases and did his defensive work around third base like a veteran.

Dick Cox slugging outfielder of the Dodgers who has been on a consecutive game hitting streak was stopped suddenly when he failed to serve Bremer's delivery.

MAY SEYMOUR FOOTLOOSE

by BEATRICE BURTON
SEQUEL TO "THE FLAPPER WIFE" CNEA

THE STORY SO FAR:

MAY SEYMOUR, whose husband killed himself because of her love affairs with JIM CAREWE, returns home after a year's absence. She disposes of her inherited property, and with $8000 in her handbag, sets out to find and marry a man with money.

At Atlantic City she meets a divorcee, CARLOTTA FROLKING, and her two friends, HERBERT WATERBURY and DAN SPRAGUE. Waterbury and Sprague both pay suit to May, to the distress of Carlotta, who has been in love with Dan for twelve years.

He asks May to marry him, but May refuses, having made up her mind that Waterbury is the millionaire husband she has set her heart upon.

Waterbury, however, does not propose, and May has all but decided to go to Europe when Carlotta asks her to spend the winter with her in California.

About this time, Waterbury complains of his annual attack of gout, and tells May he is going to leave for the west soon. So May accepts Carlotta's invitation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

MAY sat silent, watching the chambermaid pack away Carlotta's dresses in the huge wardrobe trunks that stood in the middle of the floor.

The door of the clothes-closet stood open; and within it were still more dresses—bright-hued things of silk and cobwebby lace. Carlotta's things were always the sort that a very young girl might wear to her first party.

Below them on the floor, stood a neat row of slippers. The dressing table was covered with boxes of powder, jars of rouge, and bottles of perfume and toilet water.

The sight of these things stirred in May a wholly feminine longing for things like them—new clothes and new cosmetics to enhance her beauty in the somewhat bored eyes of Herbert Waterbury.

She looked down at her plain black dress and walking-shoes with great dissatisfaction.

"Do you know, I believe I'm tired of these widow's weeds of mine," she said suddenly to Carlotta. "I want something cheerful again—a red dinner gown or a suit of hunter's green. Hurry up and dress, and we'll go out shopping, eh, wot?"

Carlotta brightened visibly. "Fair enough," she said. "There's nothing I enjoy quite so much as shopping with somebody else—unless it's shopping for myself."

It was cold out of doors. Carlotta's lips were quite blue as they hurried down the Boardwalk toward the dress-shop in the Marlborough-Blenheim.

"I think you'd better buy yourself a fur coat instead of a fall suit," she said to May, with chattering teeth. "You'd be able to use it out in California, too, this winter. Sometimes it's right cold out there."

May gave this sober thought for a long moment. She had spent almost half of her $8000 in the two short weeks she had had it. At this rate, it wouldn't last long—Oh, well, what was the difference? She had made up her mind to spend every cent she had in the world on husband-hunting. And she wasn't going to change her program now, when Herbert Waterbury was almost in her net!

"All right, let's go and look at fur coats!" she cried recklessly to Carlotta. "And I want to get a couple of dresses, too."

"You may just as well get what you need for all winter now," Carlotta said, shivering. "Because there aren't any smart shops near Los Altos. We'll spend most of our time in khaki breeches, up there." The only coat that May really wanted in the little fur-store a mile down the Boardwalk, was a soft, gold-colored one of mink. It was $3000.

The coat May wanted was a soft gold-colored one of mink. It was $3000!

"I won't even try it on," she said to the saleswoman. "Because I know I'd never take it off, if I did. And I can't afford it. Let's see that one of mink that's in the window."

The saleswoman, who knew her business, shrugged her shoulders with supreme indifference. "Try it on, if you like," she said. "But you will not like it. Gray is not for colorless women."

May stiffened. She did not like to be called "colorless." She thought of herself as being the tone of mother-of-pearl.

"Madame's lovely skin needs a background like this!" the woman went on smoothly, and before May knew what she was doing, she had flung the mink coat around her.

Even the plegmatic Carlotta gave a little cry of admiration as May nestled her chin into the soft fur. The collar rose flatteringly behind her dark hair.

A line of Robert Browning's flashed through her brain: "If one could have that little head of hers. Set on a background of pure Tuscan gold."

A poem written by a flesh-and-blood man to a woman's beauty! That was what men wanted—the beauty of women! They wrote their poems to it, painted it upon immortal canvases—

And if this fur coat served as a background for her beauty, to give her grace in Herbert Waterbury's eyes, it was cheap at the price. "I'll take it," she decided instantly. "You can put the mink skin one back —that you could bring me very great joy or very great sorrow." He went on slowly, looking deep into May's shining eyes.

"Which are you going to bring me?" he asked.

Just as May opened her lips to answer him, a fresh young masculine voice interrupted them.

"Hello, Mr. Waterbury," it said lightly, and May turned in her chair to see a young man holding out his hand to Waterbury.

He was a very tall young man, extremely thin and almost unhumanly pale. His smooth-plastered hair shone like patent leather, and his eyes had a feverish glint under straight black brows.

"Hello, Jack," Waterbury answered. "What are you doing down here? Thought you'd be back in Cambridge this time of year. Hasn't school begun?"

The youth laughed. May felt his restless eyes pass over her as he answered.

"School's begun but I haven't str." he said. "Thought I'd come down here for a week-end before the grind got me!"

Waterbury turned to May. "Mrs. Seymour, may I present Mr. Jack Darnley?"

"Not Jack Darnley, the drop kicker?" asked May, who never read the woman's page of the newspapers, but knew the name of every famous baseball, football, and golf player in the country.

The boy flushed a little under his pallor, and shifted uneasily.

"Yeah, Jack's the pride of Harvard," Waterbury answered in a tone that struck May as being almost fatherly. "What's the matter with you, Jack? You look as if you'd been through a siege of sickness."

"I have," Jack Darnley answered. "Had appendicitis a couple of months ago—That's why I'm not playing football this year."

He turned suddenly to May. "That's a great little piece they're playing downstairs," he said to her. "Don't it?"

May listened to the rhythmical melody that beat in the distance. "Yum-yum," she said, smiling straight into the boy's eyes. "I adore to dance, don't you?"

"Yes, let's," he said. "Come along, Mr. Waterbury—you can park your self at a table with a glass of gingerale, and I'll give you something interesting to put into it!"

He grinned as he patted his hip pocket. "Hereafter," he said. "The stuff that made old Volstead famous!"

They started away, Waterbury limping slightly, and leaning heavily upon his cane. Darnley felt May's shoulder most pleasantly in contact with his own, as they went down the stairs to the green dimness of the submarine room.

She looked up into his eyes as they danced, her own half-closed. She smiled a little as they swayed in time to the irregular measure of the music.

"Ah, but you dance!" she breathed. The boy pressed her hand, and held her closer. "Too old Herby doesn't," he said. "How do you come to be hooked up to him? A girl like you?"

"I'm not hooked up to him!" May answered indignantly. "He's just a man I happened to meet down here through one of my friends. How do you happen to know him, yourself?"

"Oh, my dad had some business dealings with him," Jack told her, with his head bent so that his cheek brushed hers. "You're not his girl, then?"

"Of course, not!" "Whose girl are you?" "Nobody's girl," May threw back her head and laughed. "Nobody loves me."

"You going to be my girl?" "Am I?" May asked, demurely fluttering her eyelashes. "You tell me."

"I'll tell you more about it, tonight," Jack Darnley said as the music ceased, and they went slowly back to Herby and his high-ball. "You're going to meet me tonight at nine, on the Steel Pier, aren't you?"

"How romantic!" May's voice made fun of him, but the look in her eyes was as tender as a kiss. "A tryst in the dark. All right, I'll meet you, Little Boy!"
